A woman is using her computer at the school library. Her classmate approaches her.

Ahn: Hey, what're you up to?

Yumeko: Oh, I'm just looking up info for my flight to Indonesia.

Ahn: That's right! I can't believe that you're leaving so soon. I'm jealous—I want to do study abroad next year in France, but I'd have to give up my part-time job.

Yumeko: Yeah, that's too bad.

Ahn: Oh well. Anyway, what were you looking up?

Yumeko: The prices for bringing over all my stuff. I'm gonna be there for half a year, so there's a lot of stuff I want to bring, but the baggage fees are pricey. How did you decide what you want to bring with you when you moved to Japan?

Ahn: I suppose I just brought over ^①_____. I brought over a few clothes and things like some of my hair products that I can't get outside of Vietnam, but other than that, I didn't really bring much else. I knew I'd want to buy clothes while here, so why bring them? Other things like hairbrushes, toothpaste, and razors could also be bought here, so I didn't bring them. It was more expensive to buy everything here, but it was worth it to not have to travel carrying a bunch of stuff. Plus, it was fun going shopping and buying everything once I arrived here.

Yumeko: I guess I should probably do that too. But even then, I'll probably have too much for just one bag. Even if I manage to squeeze everything in, there's no way it'll be under 23 kilograms. Do you think it'd be better to try to pack everything into one suitcase even if it ends up too heavy, or to just get a second bag.

Ahn: If that's the case, you should just get a second suitcase. You'll end up buying stuff there that you'll have to take back.

Yumeko: Alright, that's what I'll do. Plus, I'm flying in business anyway, so it works out better that way.

Ahn: ^②You're flying in business class? Wow, I didn't know you were that rich!

Yumeko: I wish! My mom flies a lot for work and was able to use her credit card points to upgrade my seat.

Ahn: Ah, I see. Still, flying business class will be super nice.

Yumeko: Well, I won't be getting used to it. My mom told me I'm on my own once I'm out of university!
