次の表と会話を読み、下の問い(問 21～26)に答えなさい。

Miki, a Japanese college student, is visiting her neighborhood friend Yumi's house.

Miki: Hey Yumi, I'm thinking about getting a part-time job for the first time. You've been working at various places part-time since you were in high school, right? Do you have any recommendations?

Yumi: Sure! But there are a few options you need to consider. Actually, I made a chart a while ago about possible job places because I wanted to change my part-time job. I'll show it to you.

Job Type	♥	♦	♣	♠
Hourly Wage	¥1,000	¥1,050	¥1,300	¥950
Location	Near school	In the city	At students' homes	In the neighborhood
Flexibility	Medium	High	Low	High
Suitable Personality	Detail-oriented, reliable	Outgoing, sociable	Patient, knowledgeable	Organized, efficient

Miki: Wow, tutoring pays well. Oh, but it seems less flexible.

Yumi: Yeah. How about working at a cafe? It can be fun and the hours are more flexible.

Miki: True, but the convenience store job is closer to school, which would save me time commuting.

Yumi: That's a good point. What about the supermarket job near your house? It might be convenient if you want to work late and get home quickly.

Miki: I hadn't thought about that. Flexibility is really important to me since I have to balance schoolwork and other activities.

- Yumi: In that case, the cafe or supermarket might be the best option. And working in a cafe is a good way to improve your communication skills.
- Miki: That sounds nice. _____ I'm not very outgoing, and I'm a bit worried about jobs that require a lot of social interaction.
- Yumi: I understand. Then, maybe you should choose a job where social interaction is less intense. For example, tutoring is more one-on-one and might be more comfortable for you. Also, jobs at a convenience store or supermarket can be good because they involve short interactions and more task-focused work.
- Miki: Hmmm, the pay for tutoring is really attractive. I could save up more quickly for things I want to buy. But at the same time, I don't want to be too tired during weekdays with an inflexible job.
- Yumi: True. Maybe you could try _____ during weekdays and _____ on weekends. That way, you get the best of both worlds.
- Miki: That makes sense. I think I would feel more comfortable in those settings. Thanks for the advice! By the way, my sister had a really tough time with one of her part-time jobs. She wanted to leave to focus on her studies, but they wouldn't let her go right away. I don't want to end up in the same situation. Any ideas on how to avoid that?
- Yumi: That sounds stressful. I think the best way to avoid that is to clearly understand the job's policies before you start. Make sure you know the procedure for leaving and get it in writing if possible. Also, try to maintain a good relationship with your manager. If they see you as responsible and dedicated, they might be more understanding if you need to leave.
- Miki: I'll definitely keep that in mind. Thanks again, Yumi.
